

4 WAYS TO PANDEMIC-PROOF YOUR CAREER

These 4 steps can put you in the best position to confront an economic downturn & the job losses in a pandemic.

Build or Maintain Healthy Credit

More often, employers are checking your credit to qualify you for a job. When jobs are scarce, this could be the deciding factor between 2 quality candidates. Review your credit report frequently, safeguard your personal info, & minimize debt.

Develop Transferable Skills

Transferable skills in a pandemic is golden. Problem-solving, interpersonal communication, collaboration, & creative-thinking skills are necessary when a company is facing unforeseen challenges.

Update Your Resume

Set a date with your resume every 3 months. It's easy to forget accomplishments, community engagement or accolades if you don't add them on a regular basis. Try using a resume template from Canva to help your resume stand out.

Expand Your Network

Cultivate a strong professional community, to better position yourself, to easily find a new job if you're laid off. Many local community organizations, like Commerce of Lexington, have volunteer programs where you can connect with other professionals.

Digging Deeper: Work with a Financial Specialist from an accredited non-profit, like Apprisen, to review your credit & set credit-building goals:

www.apprisen.com | 800-355-2227